

2019 LEADERSHIP SUMMIT

CONNECT

The 2019 Leadership Summit will be held at Sundance Mountain Resort, Utah, on November 5–6.

With an audience of around 100 high-level leadership development, learning, and talent leaders, this event has a long history and reputation of highlighting cutting-edge research and insights in leadership development, as well as being an intimate setting for creating meaningful connections.

This year, we're inviting some of the brightest minds in our industry—that means you—to give brief, 15-minute talks that are focused, inspirational, and provoke important conversations on a wide range of talent management topics.

In addition to presenting at the Leadership Summit, those selected will be among the first highlighted in a new series presented by Zenger Folkman, Talent Speaks, that leverages and emphasizes progressive thinking in our industry. Talent Speaks talks will be featured on our newsletter, website, and social media channels, reaching tens of thousands of talent management professionals. Your participation will add to the diversity and richness of this new series while providing an opportunity to build your personal brand.

Additional benefits of presenting at the 2019 Leadership Summit:

- An all-access pass to the entire conference and post-conference workshops (excluding certifications), a value of up to $3,000. (Speakers are responsible for travel and lodging.)
- VIP treatment, including the handling of your personal conference logistics.
- Deep discounts on additional passes for your team members.
